This program is presented in partnership by the North American Thrombosis Forum and pmCME.

This accredited educational program will provide you with a comprehensive, multidisciplinary overview of major issues concerning acute coronary syndromes, stroke prevention in atrial fibrillation, and venous thromboembolism.

Learning Objectives

As a result of participating in the program, learners will be able to:

- * Assess the role of thrombin inhibition for treatment of acute coronary syndromes
- * Assess the role of dual antiplatelet therapy for treatment of acute coronary syndromes
- * Explain how to risk stratify patients for stroke prevention in atrial fibrillation
- * Assess the role of novel oral anticoagulants for stroke prevention in atrial fibrillation
- * Explain the association between venous thromboembolism and cancer
- * Assess the relationship between heart failure and thrombosis

Expert presentations will incorporate perspectives from translational science, clinical research, and prevention efforts. More than 25% of the curriculum is devoted to discussion, questions, and answers.

This course is intended for physicians, pharmacists, nurses, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, patients, and caregivers.
